Nine nominees vie for four positions

By TIM DAILEY
Staff writer

Nine members of the Black Student Union were nominated for four executive board positions at the Tuesday meeting in the Charleston-Mattoon Room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Candidates nominated for president are Aaron Bell and Armand Johnson. The three candidates nominated for vice president are Shannon Ford, Tyran Cox-Bey and Elecia Dexter. Secretary nominees are Rhonda King and Toren Turner and candidates for treasurer are Delphine Parson and Patricia Maclure.

All the nominees are required to submit their applications for the offices for which they were nominated by Friday, said BSU president Kevin Evans.

The candidates will then give a two to three minute presentation to the union at the next meeting, March 31, and elections will follow the presentations, Evans added.

Evans urged all members to come to the next meeting to hear the candidates and vote.

"It's very important you make a good decision and consider what the nominee has done in the past with BSU," said Evans.

The BSU also reviewed the Bowl-a-thon. The champions of the mens' division were the Kappa Alpha Psi team and the ladies of Alpha Kappa Alpha won the womens' division, said Bell, who organized the Bowl-a-thon.

"The Bowl-a-thon was real nice. We had a lot of fun," said Bell, who added that the BSU raised $180 from the event.

defeated in 43 years, conceded the race at approximately 11:45 p.m.

Not surprisingly, Coles County, virtually ignored by Braun's campaign and traditionally an incumbent-friendly region gave Dixon 50 percent of the Democratic votes, Hofeld took 28 percent and Braun finished with only 20 percent.

In the Presidential race Democratic favorite Bill Clinton took 53 percent of Coles County votes, while Paul Tsongas, stumbling in Michigan, settled for 24 percent of the share.

Jerry Brown, who finished second in Michigan, took only 14 percent of Illinois' Democrats and only 612 votes in this county.

Dixon's downfall appeared to be part of an anti-incumbent trend across Illinois, which also saw long-time House incumbent Terry Bruce unseated as well. The defeat came despite an endorsement from liberal Democrat Sen. Paul Simon.

If she wins in November, Braun will be the first black woman elected to the U.S. Senate.

Decatur as an example. "All in all, we met or exceeded our goals in every county."

"We will continue working 17 hours a day from now until November," Poshard said in his victory address. "We'll take nothing for granted."

Wolf added that he doesn't anticipate the Republican opposition next fall to be nearly as much of a challenge as Bruce's was.

"It would be hard to imagine that it would be," he said.

Wolf said Poshard hopes to prove with his campaign to Washington that political victories don't require expansive war chests.

"Politicians need not fear losing without special interest money," Wolf said.

Poshard announced at the beginning of his campaign that he would not accept any campaign money from special interest groups. Bruce holds more than $700,000 in PAC funds.

Mike Bushman, a Bruce spokesman said that Coles County led with Bruce by nearly a two-to-one margin but that Central Illinois support was not enough to combat Poshard's advantage in more southern constituencies.

"At this point it looks like Poshard will have the votes to win," Bushman said.

Bruce said in his concession speech that he was grateful to all the people he represented for their support. Final total from Coles County gave Bruce 3,219 votes - nearly 67 percent - against Poshard's 1,607 votes or 33 percent.

Bushman said Bruce had not given much thought to his post-campaign plans and planned to attend to some family matters in the near future.

Attorney general

he explained.

However, Leach said the decision not to represent Ivarie and Walstrom did not indicate that their accounts specifically differed from those of the other four defendants.

"Absolutely not," he said. "We're not prepared to comment at all on the veracity of anyone's accounts."

BOG spokeswoman Michelle Brazell explained Tuesday that the board's attorney would normally represent Eastern employees who are defendants in a lawsuit.

However, since the board is also a defendant, Brazell said the board's attorney would face a conflict of interest representing the Eastern defendants.

In such cases, she explained, the state attorney general's office represents state employees free of charge.

The attorney general office's refusal to represent the two administrators "does not mean Ivarie and Walstrom are denied defense," Brazell explained, adding, "The decision as to who will pay (for their defense) is still being determined".

Walstrom declined to comment on where he would obtain legal representation or what his reaction to the decision is.

He added he wasn't "sure" the statement that the office would not represent him and Ivarie was a "correct interpretation."

"I'd rather not comment until I find out more about it," he said.

When he was asked whether he had been notified of the office's decision, he said "I'd rather not say."

Neither Ivarie nor Rives returned phone calls from The News by press time.

Quinn plan aimed at increasing voter turnout

By MIKE CHAMBERS
Staff writer

If some Charleston voters turning out for Tuesday's primary are any indication, Pat Quinn's Motor Voter Registration proposal, which would make registering to vote easier, may be a reality in the near future.

But one political scientist says not to expect miracles as far as voter turnout.

Illinois residents eligible to vote would be automatically registered when they get their driver's license through the Secretary of State's office if this proposal is passed by the General Assembly.

When asked, most voters at local precincts 14 and 18 Tuesday said a Motor Voter system of registration would be more convenient than the current system.

"I can see the convenience in it (the Motor Voter system)," said Eastern senior Jason March. "There's some people it would help."

The Motor Voter system would be more convenient for voters but probably wouldn't have a significant impact on the voting habits of Illinois residents, said Andrew McNitt, an Eastern political science professor.

The Motor voter system is used

Primary success may not continue

By JILL BAUTER
Staff writer

Although there were a few upsets in the Illinois primary, some members of the university community agreed the continued success of Tuesday's winners may depend on the fate of the economy.

"Economic issues are very important," said Joseph Connelly, political science professor. "There are a lot of people out of work." According to political science Professor Laurence Thorsen, Illinois has one of the highest unemployment rates in the nation.

Bush claimed another victory in Illinois, but according to Connelly, "If the economy is still slow (in November), Bush is in trouble."

Carol Moseley Braun surprised many with her showing in the Democratic senatorial race against Al Hofeld and incumbent Alan Dixon. "It's surprising how well Braun did," said David Williams of the EIU College Republicans.

Braun only took about 20 percent of the votes in Coles County, compared to Dixon's 50 percent. But despite Dixon's support downstate, Braun won by 42 percent.

Glenn Poshard, who was forced to run against incumbent Terry Bruce after the 22nd district was eliminated, also surprised some with his victory Tuesday.

Poshard successfully overcame nasty campaigning and the difficulty the re-districting caused, said Bobby Smith, spokesperson for the University Democrats and a former intern under Poshard.

Because of the current job market, the economy is a major factor in how college students vote.

"We're going to be graduating in an economy with no jobs," Smith said.

Williams agreed the economy was one of the main issues that concerned student voters. "Students want a change in Congress," he said.

Smith said other important issues for students are education policies and health care. However, the college-age group does not typically have a strong turnout in elections.

"Unfortunately, students don't vote very much in primaries," Thorsen said. Smith, a 16th precinct committeeman, described the turnout for his precinct on Tuesday as "atrocious" and "ridiculous."

In Coles County, 41.9% of registered voters participated in Tuesday's primary. Out of 26,635 registered voters in the county, 11,168 valid ballots were counted. However, exact turnout figures for the student precincts were unavailable.

they are "purged" from the polls and have to re-register.

"(So) the thing you have to do is establish a same-day registration system to see a significant turnout," McNitt said.

Opposition to the Motor Voter Registration system comes from the heart of the proposed system – the Secretary of State's office. A spokesperson for that office said excessive costs make that plan unacceptable, estimating a $33.8 million start-up cost.

But Quinn and McNitt both question that figure.

Minnesota and Wisconsin are two states that currently employ a Motor Voter Registration system, yet both states showed lower turnout rates in the 1988 presidential election than Illinois, posting a scant 50 percent.

But McNitt said Illinois is traditionally a high voter turnout state, usually levitating at the 60 percent mark.

North Dakota is one state requiring no registration to vote. That state showed a 56 percent turnout in the 1988 race.

Quinn's proposal, which he said will be introduced in the spring session, is part of a 10-point plan called the "Lincoln Amendments" that deals almost exclusively with voter reforms.

in seven states currently.

To vote in the primaries a resident has to be at least 18 years old and register with their local county office, usually through various deputy registration points throughout state-wide precincts. In Illinois potential voters have to register at least 30 days before a primary is held.

This is one criticism of Illinois' system.

Unless a race is particularly close – close enough to attract attention from the voters – it is difficult for many to get out to register.

And if voters in this state haven't voted in six years (two elections),

Local primary races competitive

By BOB McKEE
Senior reporter

Even though Tuesday's primary hosted few contested local seats, inter-party competition in Coles County proved to be both hot and cold.

In the Democratic ballot, six of 16 county positions were uncontested – three of which are incumbents – and three seats hosted competition.

The Republican ticket revealed that 10 positions were uncontested for a spot on the general election ballot and four seats were contested – five of the 10 uncontested seats are held by incumbents.

The county's primary ballot had six Democratic vacancies and two Republican spots which have no candidate vying for the position.

In the only GOP contest outside of the county board races, Associate Judge Gary Jacobs handily defeated Charleston attorney Priscilla Ebdon to represent the party as its candidate for the Fifth Judicial Circuit Court Judge in the fall general election.

Jacobs said his three years as an associate judge was certainly helpful in that he was exposed to the public and received "good" judicial experience.

"I can't fill his (Judge Joseph R. Spitz) shoes, but I want to try emulate Judge Spitz's integrity on the bench," Jacobs said.

Jacobs will run unopposed in the general election.

In the race for Democratic county coroner candidate, Mike Nichols of Mattoon received a decisive 78 percent of the vote defeating opponent Vic Denning, also of Mattoon.

Nichols currently serves as county coroner – to finish the term of Dick Lynch – after holding the office of deputy coroner for 14 years.

Nichols said he wants to continue the professionalism established in the coroner's office under Lynch and is adamant about educating the public about drunken driving.

Nichols will face Republican John R. Schilling of Mattoon in the fall general election.

In the contest for the Democratic State's Attorney candidacy, C. Steve Ferguson beat Marsha L. Combs by gaining 64 percent of the vote. Ferguson will oppose Mark A. Novak of Charleston in the general election.

The selection of candidates for county board members saw tighter competition.

In the only board seat competition for the Democratic party, Leslie "Bub" Young defeated George Gullion, Jr. with 61 percent of the votes for the District 7 position.

In the race for the three contested Republican county board candidate seats, the following candidates defeated their opponents: Robert A. "Bob" Jones won in District 1 by a narrow margin of less than one percent; Eugene Sims came out on top of District 2 with 51.9 percent and Jackie Bacon captured 78 percent of the vote to defeat her opponent in District 9.

Also on the ticket, the referendum to provide revenue to fund the Coles County 4-H youth and adult educational programs of the county's Cooperative Extension Service by levying and collecting an annual tax was narrowly defeated by 251 votes.

BOG responds to advisory committee's concerns

By SUSAN KIEL
Staff writer

The Board of Governors responded Tuesday to concerns by the Presidential Search Advisory Committee about the current presidential search process.

Concerns raised in the committee's Monday meeting included questions about applicants being pre-screened in Springfield, instead of at Eastern, as well as questions on the criteria being used by the chancellor's office for screening applicants.

The committee also raised the questions about the possibilities of extending the search deadline from August to January and inviting BOG Chancellor Thomas Layzell to meet with the group.

Michelle Brazell, spokeswoman for the BOG, said there is no pre-screening involved and that the BOG will provide information to the committee on every applicant.

"They will see every name and enough information about each applicant to ask questions about why or why not that name was included," Brazell said.

The committee will have the opportunity to see the applications of candidates that were not sent to the committee on request, she said.

"The chancellor will listen to whatever (the committee) has to say (regarding the candidates)," Brazell added.

Brazell said the criteria being used to select and eliminate candidates for the first cut include the candidate's education and administrative experience.

"We will be looking at the types of institutions the candidates have been at and how (those universities) compare to Eastern," she said. "We will also be looking for evidence that this person would be an effective leader."

Brazell said both Layzell and the committee are looking for the same thing in a candidate, someone who would be a strong president.

In response to the committee's question about extending the search deadline to sometime in January, Brazell said the BOG does not see any need to consider extending the deadline at this time.

Brazell also said Layzell will meet with the committee on Monday.

"Chancellor Layzell always meets with the search committees," she said. "He works very closely with the committees throughout this process."

Layzell is looking forward to working with the presidential search committee, Brazell added.

If a letter has more than three authors, only the names of the first three will be printed.

Senate hears candidate's qualifications

By JAMIE RILEY
Features editor

Rachel Fordyce made a presentation about her background and her qualifications for the position of vice president for academic affairs to the Faculty Senate Tuesday.

Fordyce, currently dean of the College of Humanities and Social Services at the Indiana University of Pennsylvania, is the third of four candidates to make a presentation for the vice presidential position.

After the presentation, Fordyce then answered questions from senate members.

The Faculty Senate, Council on Academic Affairs, Council on Graduate Studies and Council on Teacher Education are interviewing all four of the candidates and sending feedback to the advisory committee for the search for the vice president for academic affairs.

Barbara Hill, the fourth candidate to be interviewed on campus, is currently acting vice president for academic affairs.

In other business at the Faculty Senate meeting, the senate tabled a motion from senate member Craig Eckert to stand behind a bill proposed by Rep. Mike Weaver, R-Ashmore, that — if passed by the Illinois General Assembly — would eliminate the Board of Governors and the Board of Regents.

The Board of Governors is the governing body for Eastern, Chicago State, Governors State, Northeastern Illinois and Western Illinois universities. The Board of Regents governs Illinois State, Northern Illinois and Sangamon State universities.

If the bill is passed as written, duties of the two governing bodies would be transferred to the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

The Faculty Senate also discussed the proposed 1993-94 academic calendar.

The senate has until April 1 to make recommendations for changes to Samuel Taber, dean of student academic services.

Physical plant director interviews to begin

By CHRIS SEPER
Administration editor

Four candidates for the position of physical plant director have been chosen with interviews for the actual replacement scheduled to begin March 30.

Martin Ignazito, Robert Washburn, Heinz Butt and John Dempsey are the four candidates up for the position.

"We're looking for someone with the leadership abilities that we need to manage a staff as complex as the physical plant," said Charles Colbert, vice president for business affairs.

"At the same time, we need someone with a vision as far as campus development and can maintenance the campus as well," he added.

Ignazito's interview is scheduled first, from March 30 to April 1, with Dempsey being the final interviewee during April 8 to 11.

A permanent appointee should hopefully be chosen sometime after April 11, Colbert said.

"I would like to make it (decision on the position) as quick as I possibly can after we've completed the interviews," he said. "(That way) the person who takes the job would have a little time to get to know the position."

The physical plant position opened when former director Vic Robeson announced he was being reassigned and stepping down on Sept. 17. The resignation, which became effective on March 17, came at the request of Colbert.

Since his announcement Robeson has been relegated to work out of his home for the university. Carol Strode has been the acting physical plant director since Robeson's September resignation.

Strode opted not to enter an application for the director's position.

Each three-day interview session is conducted basically the same with a tour of the physical plant and a dinner with Colbert scheduled on day one.

On day two the candidate meets with the physical plant search committee, groups from the physical plant and the business affairs council. The candidate attends an open meeting with the University Community and later a dinner with Student Affairs representatives.

The final day the applicant eats breakfast with Colbert and meets for an interview wrap up with the search committee.

Colbert said that each group which meets with the candidates fill out an "evaluation form" and turn it into the screening committee. After a list of strengths and weaknesses are formulated, Colbert hears the recommendations from the committee and makes his decision.

"I don't have any preconceived notions," he said.

Ignazito, a former Eastern employee, currently works as chief mechanical engineer at the University of Illinois. Ignazito worked as Eastern's mechanical engineer and assistant director to the physical plant from 1979 to 1988.

"I have fairly extensive experience in engineering and facilities maintenance," Ignazito said. "I'll bring that experience and that background (to Eastern). I have a working relationship with a lot of people at Eastern which I think will benefit everyone involved."

Ignazito pointed out he worked as acting physical plant director after the retirement of Eastern's then current physical plant director.

"I have quite a bit of experience and always enjoyed (working at Eastern)," Ignazito said. "I'd like to renew it."

Apportionment Board approves new system

By SHERRY SIDWELL
Staff writer

After more than two months of discussion, the Apportionment Board has finally decided that Lantz Gymnasium will have a new sound system.

The AB approved a motion Tuesday to allocate $56,670 toward the purchase of a sound system estimated to cost approximately $170,000. Of the $56,670 allocated by the board, half will come from the Apportionment Board reserve and half will come from the University Board Concert reserve.

The $170,000 cost of the system will be divided among the athletics and housing departments and the AB reserve.

"I have sat on this board for many years, and I have seen this reserve grow and continue to grow. I think this is the best way I have seen yet to spend this money," AB Adviser Joan Gossett said.

AB vice chair Ron Carmona, however, disagreed with the board.

"This is a lot of money we're being asked for and I would bet if we disapproved this motion, the money will be found somewhere else. The money may be under a carpet in Old Main or someplace else, but I would bet it's there somewhere," Carmona said.

The Apportionment Board and UB Concert reserves combined currently total approximately $260,000.

Lantz Gym's current sound system failed March 6 at the last home basketball game. A rented sound system has been used at all events since that time. It would have cost $4,250 to repair the current system, AB Chair Steve Macaluso said.

Charles Colbert, vice president for business affairs, appeared at the board's regular Tuesday meeting to answer questions about the system. Colbert originally proposed the purchase of a new system to improve commencement, although he said the new system will not be in place in time for spring commencement.

While deliberating the motion for the sound system, many AB members expressed concern that if the motion failed, the AB reserve would remain at a very high level and then become subject to the excess fund law. This law states that money in local reserves which is generated by local organizations, such as Eastern, cannot be more than 12 percent above the amount for which they were originally budgeted.

If reserves exceed 12 percent, the funds are turned over to the state of Illinois.

Last fraternity house mother retires after 29 years of service

By STEVE LYSAKER
Activities editor

After nearly 30 years of service, the only remaining fraternity house mother on campus will retire later this year.

Genevieve Slavin, who is finishing her 29th school year as the Sigma Pi house mother, said she will retire due to arthritis and upcoming surgery.

"I've really enjoyed my time here, but I think they (Sigma Pi) need someone younger, someone with some more zip," Slavin said.

Slavin said she was a widow living in Decatur about 30 years ago and knew a woman who was serving as a house mother. "She said, 'you'd make a good house mother,'" Slavin said. "The next day I saw an ad in the paper, responded to it and got the job."

Although her job consists mostly of making sure the Sigma Pi house, which is located at 956 Sixth St., is taken care of, Slavin said that in the past she has entertained the president of the university and Eastern administrators. She has attended Panther sporting events, various Greek functions and has done some counseling.

"Some of the kids come from broken homes and need someone to serve as sort of a surrogate mother," she said. "Some of the guys even call me 'mom.'"

After nearly three decades of service, Slavin said she has seen many changes in rules and people in general.

"The rules aren't as stringent anymore," Slavin said. "House mothers used to have to stay up until two in the morning to make sure there was no hanky-panky. I'm a night-owl anyway, but I think it's great they don't have set hours anymore."

Slavin has also noticed changes in the way students deal with their problems.

"It's good to see people talking more freely, especially the guys," she said.

"People seem more relaxed even though the way of living is so fast-paced."

The most enjoyable part of her job is "being around and talking to the guys." She added that although she is a widow, she doesn't miss male companionship because of the camaraderie she shares with the members of the fraternity.

"I enjoy watching sports and having conversations with the guys," Slavin said. "I love them dearly."

Sigma Pi recently honored Slavin with a scholarship in her name. Slavin said the scholarship was introduced and its first recipient named on Founder's Day.

"It's called the Genevieve 'Mom' Slavin Scholarship and I'm very honored by it," she said. "Most people have to be dead to have a scholarship named after them."

Slavin said by the time she retires she will have seen about 1,200 men pass through the Sigma Pi house. "I think I've only disliked three out of all those guys. I think that's a pretty good track record," she added.

Although Slavin said she will miss the house and the people she worked with, she added it has been an "excellent experience." Slavin said she has become a better person because she has worked with people she really cares about.

"I'm really going to miss these guys," Slavin said. "I'm going to move into an apartment where there are older people and it's going to be hard because I'm so used to the energy and noise."

"This job has really kept me young, or at least young at heart," she added.

Slavin said she hopes the fraternity will welcome its new house mother and will "love her the same way they love me."

Slavin added, "I hope they've learned something from me and I hope I've left a little something for them to remember me by."

Tributes offered to protester

By JAY ASKIN
Staff writer

EAST ST. LOUIS — Deposed Haitian President Jean-Bertrand Aristide and Rev. Jesse Jackson paid tribute Monday to former dancer/choreographer Katherine Dunham who entered day 45 of her hunger strike in protest of U.S. policy toward Haitian refugee repatriation.

At the news conference, held at Dunham's residence in East St. Louis, Aristide gave thanks to Dunham, and Jackson lashed out at the Bush administration's current policies regarding Haiti and boat refugees.

Aristide, referring to Dunham as "Mom," said, "Today we've come to bring love to her (Dunham) ... she wants our rights to be respected and the rights of those political refugees coming from Haiti. Ninety percent of the people love you and need you."

"Thank you Rev. Jackson for all you're doing to build solidarity with Haitians who are fighting for democracy," Aristide said. "Haiti is like a broken glass, and we have to start pulling it back together section by section."

Jackson called U.S. policy toward Haitian refugees "immoral and racist" and likened it to the 1939 U.S. government's decision to return German-Jewish boat refugees to Europe, where they also faced persecution.

"Today is about morality, legality and justice," Jackson said.

The Bush administration denies allegations of harm toward Haitian refugees.

In a response to a letter sent to President Bush by Dunham, National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft wrote, "We have no indication that anyone has been abused by Haitian authorities for having tried to reach the United States."

after being the first democratically elected president in the Caribbean nation's 200-year history.

"Over 2,000 people have been killed in five months," Aristide said. "Right now there is a small group of criminals with weapons in their hands ... we have to get the criminals out of the army ... (and) separate the police from the military."

Noting differences between the Bush administration's commitment toward Kuwait and Haiti, Jackson called on the president to "play the game by one set of rules."

Jackson praised Dunham for her strength and suffering while comparing her to the likes of Martin Luther King Jr. and Jesus Christ, who Jackson said "suffered so others could live."

Aristide elaborated on the same theme, saying, "Jesus gave his life for the world; she wants to give (her) life to Haiti."

Congress recently passed legislation that would return Aristide to power, but it still remains to be ratified by the Haitian parliament.

In closing, Jackson said to Aristide, "The waters that divide us are not strong as the blood that unites us."

Dunham, who could be seen waving from her second story bedroom window, is reported in stable condition and said she hopes to return to her home in Port au Prince, Haiti.

Illinois senatorial candidate Carol Moseley Braun attended the conference, but did not speak.

Orchestra to perform in Dvorak

By AMY HILL
Staff writer

The Eastern Illinois University/Community Orchestra will perform at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Dvorak Concert Hall.

Donald Tracy, conductor of the orchestra, said the concert includes pieces by such classical composers as Franz Joseph Haydn, Igor Stravinsky and Richard Strauss.

Tracy said the program also includes solos by Eastern music faculty members Cynthia Baker on violin, Joseph Martin on oboe and bassoonist Bernard Borah. Tracy said the concert also includes a solo by his wife, cellist Gretchen Tracy.

Tracy said the audience will probably most enjoy the re-orchestrated "Firebird" ballet suite by Stravinsky because "it's a very big, lush work." Tracy added the orchestra will also play the rarely-performed "Sinfonie Concertant" by Haydn.

Admission for the concert is $3 for the public and $2 for senior citizens and students with an ID.

The five members of Regency will perform at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Rathskellar, located in the basement of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union. The group will perform pieces including songs by Elvis Presley and James Brown.

Regency to perform in Rathskeller

By ANGIE NORMAN
Staff writer

The Special Events Committee of the University Board will present Regency, a five-man musical group, who will perform in the Rathskeller at 8 p.m. Wednesday with an admission of $1 for students with a valid ID and $3 for the general public.

Regency, which hails from Baltimore, Md., showcases twins Dwayne and Wayne McNeil, Milton Ames, newest member Duane Early and bassist Anthony Griffin. They will perform acapella, jazzapella, funkapella and rockapella. Their performance will include songs from such artists as Elvis Presley, the Righteous Brothers, Sam Cooke and James Brown. Regency may also sing some country music.

"All the students should see the show; it is something that would appeal to everyone," said Patricia McClure, special events coordinator for the University Board.

McClure added the group will also perform little "teasers" before the show in the Carman, Andrews and Taylor Hall food services.

"This is just so the students can get a feel of what the group is like," she said.

"Regency usually performs by themselves. They do not need an opening act nor do they need to be one because they put on such a great show," McClure said. "Many have compared them to the Temptations of the '90s."

McClure said the group first performed at Eastern in 1989. "There was a such a big turnout and so many people enjoyed the show that the University Board had to bring them back," she said.

McClure added that Regency has been the recipient of several awards from the National Association of Campus Activities.

Tennis team heads to Florida for spring trip

By MATT MAHARG
Staff Writer

Eastern's tennis team will head to Kissimmee, Fl during spring break with a 1-3 record after a 7-2 victory over the College of St. Francis.

"An hour into the match I didn't know how we'd do because we were struggling so much in doubles competition," head coach John Bennett said. Bennett was referring to the fact that Jay Meyer and George Macey were up against a nationally ranked doubles team in Conrad Ayala and Kevin Togliatti. It was a real struggle for Meyer and Macey, but they won 6-7, 7-6, 6-2.

Dan Beres and Ryan Ivers ran into some tough competition in John Seamount and Tom Wheeler, but pulled out a 7-5, 6-4 victory. It was these two doubles matches that had Bennett most concerned. "Anytime you're up against an underdog, you know they come out and give it all they've got and that's exactly what happened. They caught us off guard when we weren't pumped up. It really made us work to come up with the victories."

In the last doubles match, Jeff Streul and Pat

Mellin had no trouble with Ed Soldon and Todd Larson in posting a 6-0, 6-1 victory.

In singles competition, Eastern won four of the six matches, but the first one went to Conrad Ayala of St. Francis as he posted a 6-1, 6-3 victory over George Macey. "Ayala has the chance to be the top player on the small college level," Coach Lyle Hicks said. St. Francis is a NAIA school that Hicks compares to an NCAA division III school.

The toughest match of the night went to St. Francis' Kevin Togliatti after a 7-5, 5-7, 9-7 tie breaker set victory over Pat Mellin. The last set was not played like a normal set, but according to tie breaker rules. The first one to win seven points and win by two would be declared the winner. As it turned out, the match was tied at seven before Togliatti pulled it out. "Pat hit a lot of good balls against a good player but was frustrated after losing a 6-5 lead when serving," Bennett said.

The other four singles matches went to Eastern. Jeff Streul beat John Seamount 6-1, 6-4, Dan Beres defeated Tom Wheeler 6-1, 6-1, Ryan Ivers beat Todd Larson 6-1, 6-0 and Scott Holycross picked up a 7-5, 6-3 win.

"At times we didn't play very smart,"

Bennett said. "They could've had a 4-1 lead considering the first two doubles and singles matches and that's something we might not have been able to recover from."

The next action for the team will be in Kissimmee, Fl. The team will arrive March 21 and play their first match the next day against the College of Willamette, OR. Monday will be against the University of Montana followed by the University of Maryland at Baltimore Tuesday. Cleveland State will be Wednesday's opponent and the action will end Thursday with a double match against Hillsdale, MI and Oberlein College of Ohio.

"I hope to win two of those matches," Bennett said. "I don't know about the other four, though. Those are going to be really competitive. We could come back anything from 2-4 to 6-0." In the meantime, Bennett has the team working on leg strength and conditioning by jumping rope and jogging. "We need to do this because we'll have to be ready for the warm weather and outside atmosphere in Florida. I've said this before, but it's a tough transition to the outside courts so we'll be trying to get outside as much as possible before we go down there."

third base on a wild pitch one out.

Illinois starter Keith Ter struck out Rick Royer Smith to get himself out of jam.

"A good team is going to the runner to third base. Eventually he got there on a wild pitch," Callahan said. "Then we have our own three batter up and basically he hits the ball in play to go your way."

"Well sometimes you can be pretty and it doesn't really matter," Jones said. "We just had to go out and play hard when you play hard things to go your way."

Callahan said offensive score box was not lopsided.

"They had seven hits and we had seven hits," Callahan said. "The only difference is that we had four runs and we had runs. They obviously capitalized a little more on their hits than we did."

Illinois just returned from its spring trip winning six of six games in Miami. Those wins were against Southern Illinois University Carbondale, where he reigned as head coach. And last three wins have been against assistant coaches used to work for him.

"The past three games have been against my former coaches at Southern Illinois University in Sam Riggall and Dan Callahan," Icky said. "Dan is class individual. He is the type of individual who does an outstanding job in a situation and the scholarship situation he has, he does an outstanding job."

tournament for me, since I watched it since I was in grade school," Serbick said.

This season got off to a rough start after Serbick was one of the many Panther wrestlers to get the flu in late November. It kept him out of the Northern Open in Wisconsin Nov. 30 and weakened him for the Las Vegas Invitational Dec. 6.

Serbick got back on track after that and challenged his co-captain Dave Marlow for the team lead in victories. He went 3-1 in the Illinois State Red Bird Duals and finished second at 134 in the Southwest Missouri State Invitational. But then he suffered another set-back. Serbick had a lymph node infection that kept him out of six dual meets and one tournament. He ended up missing the final six weeks of the season.

"He looked sharper and quicker (after getting rid of the flu) and then all of a sudden he gets hit by the infection," McCausland said of Serbick's season. "He has had an up and down year. Now is a time to be up."

Serbick went into this season with a career record of 76-34-4 and so far has picked up 16 more wins. He currently is in the top 10 in school history for victories. Last season he compiled a career best 34-12-2 record.

In last year's National Championships, Serbick won his first match but was eliminated in his next match. Since then Serbick said he has had the goal of returning to the Nationals and placing.

"Ray is the quickest wrestler I have ever seen," teammate and practice partner Marlow said.

Serbick, who once was ranked as high as ninth in the country, thinks if he gets seeded at all in the Nationals, it will be down around 15th or 16th. His strategy for the National Championships is simple.

"I'm just going to wrestle hard, keep going at them," Serbick said. "I have to wrestle smart and not let anything back."

SOFTBALL RAIN DATES!

This is a reminder that no decisions on the cancellation of softball games due to bad weather is made until 3 p.m. on the day of the game. Please do not call the Rec Sports Office until after 3 p.m. concerning the cancellation of the game. We ask that only team managers call in.

FORFEIT AND DEFAULTS

A game will be declared a forfeit if a team cannot field the number of players required to play a game minus one player by 10 minutes after the scheduled game time. Team managers are assessed a $10.00 fee for each game that is forfeited. A team is withdrawn from a league after two forfeits. A manager may request reinstatement in writing after paying the forfeit fee owed. All unpaid forfeit fees result in a hold placed on the team manager's grades, transcripts, and registration for the following semester. Make all checks payable to Eastern Illinois University.

To default, a team must fill out a default form at the Rec Sports Office by 4:30 p.m. on the day before the scheduled game. If the game is scheduled on Monday, the form must be received before 4:30 p.m. on the Friday before the game. A loss will be given for the default, but no forfeit fee will be assessed.

Eastern's lead-off hitter Nicole Chapman pounds the ball into the ground and heads to first base during a recent Panther softball game at Lantz field. The Panthers will kick-off their season when they host Butler in a 2:00 p.m. double-header at Lantz Field

Eastern can't end jinx against Illini

By KEITH FARROLL
Associates sports editor

CHAMPAIGN— Eastern's failure to get the big hit when it needed one and ugly plays in the field resulted in a 4-2 Panther loss Tuesday at Illinois Field.

"There were literally two plays which changed the whole complexion of the game," said Eastern coach Dan Callahan.

"The comebacker in the first inning that (Panther starting pitching) Craig (Jones) mishandled and the ball that went through Keith (Mierzwa)'s legs in the third inning. And that is the whole game. Those two defensive plays literally cost us the ball game."

The Illini scored two of its runs on sloppy plays in the field. In the first inning, Illinois' Mike Ruth ripped a hard one hopper with two outs right back at Panther starter Jones with a runner on third base.

Jones lost the handle on the ball and couldn't find the ball after it popped out of his glove and allowed the runner to score to give the Illini an early 1-0 lead.

In the third inning, Mierzwa's error proved to be costly. With runners on second and third base with one out, Ruth stepped up and hit a routine grounder to Keith Mierzwa, who let the ball go between his legs, letting one runner to score, 2-0, and the other to advance to third base.

Forry Wells then hit a long fly ball to Matt Legaspi for which should have been the third out of the inning, but instead the runner tagged up from third base and scored on the sacrifice fly making the score 3-0.

Illinois coach Itchy Jones said he thought the key play in the game was when Eastern had runners on second and third base with two outs when pinch-hitter David Brooks hit a ground ball to Scott Spezio.

Spezio fielded the ball and threw a wild one hopper to Doug Irwin, who was handcuffed on the hop, but maintained control of the ball in the inning.

"Doug Irwin scooping a ball up on a low throw at first base from Spezio was the key to the game because at that time the score is 3-2 and that we have tied the score up and at that time we were struggling," Jones said.

"We made a late run and keep telling our guys when you play good defense, when your pitching is good we can win some runs. We didn't swing the bat as well today as we have in the past," said Callahan.

"I think today was a perfect example of how when you make all the plays or you make the plays you should make, you're in the game a little more and you got a chance to win," Callahan said.

Callahan was pleased to see Tad Smith break out of his slump over the last four games. Smith's RBI single in the fourth inning broke his drought.

"We talked a little bit with Tad," Callahan said.

"There is nothing wrong with his swing. There is nothing wrong with his approach. Nothing, he just wasn't being aggressive."

Although Craig Jones picked up the loss, Callahan was pleased with his performance. Jones hurled seven and two-thirds innings giving up three runs, three of them earned, seven hits walking three and striking out two batters.

"I thought he pitched well," Callahan said. "When guys pitch like that, they have a chance to keep pitching."

"He's obviously working on another start and that's his first pitched against Murray State. Other than the lead off in the first which came back to him and the lead off in the third walk which hurt him."

The Panthers had an opportunity in the first to take a lead, as Chris Clarke doubled to lead off the inning. He was

Panthers to host Butler in opener

By RYAN GIUSTI
Staff writer

With two exhibition wins under its belt, the Eastern softball team will get ready to do it for real Wednesday. The Panthers host a doubleheader with Butler University at 2 p.m. at Lantz Field.

It will be the Panthers first official game of the season after having their doubleheader with St. Louis University cancelled last Wednesday. The game will also mark the official beginning of head coach Beth Perine's career at Eastern. Monday the Panthers swept a pair of games from Illinois Central College in an exhibition matchup that marked Perine's unofficial debut.

"It seems like I've been doing this unofficial coaching for quite a while," Perine said. "We started out in the fall and we got six games in and those were unofficial and then we played again Monday and those were unofficial. I'm looking forward to finally having a real record."

Perine said she is unfamiliar with Butler but that she knows they will be "pesky and tenacious and can produce some runs."

The Panthers will field the same starting lineup it featured in the first game against Illinois Central. Chris Koehl will take the mound for the Panthers. Last season Koehl was 16-8 with a low 1.30 earned run average and struck out 147 batters in 167 innings. On Monday Koehl took a no-hitter into the sixth inning before allowing a hit. She ended up with the win and struck out seven in seven innings of work.

If opposing batters did not have enough to contend with when Koehl takes the mound, this year she has added four more pitches to her arsenal.

"I worked on (the new pitches) during the off season, and Beth helped me a lot," Koehl said.

She has added an offspeed pitch, a drop pitch, a knuckleball, and a rising curve. Koehl said that so far they are all working.

Annette Travica will be Koehl's battery mate Wednesday.

Travica went 1-1 with four walks and a sacrifice on Monday. The infield will be Nicole Chapman at firstbase, Coli Turley at secondbase, Renee Diebold at thirdbase and Tammy Stice at shortstop.

The outfield will feature Amy Klein in leftfield, Joy Parlier in centerfield and Dede Odle in rightfield. Luann Schleeter will be the designated hitter for the Panthers.

Perine said she is unsure about the starting lineup in the second game, except that Coli Turley will take the mound. On Monday Turley pitched six innings in the second game and gave up two unearned runs. Turley recorded 13 groundball outs.

A pleasant surprise from Monday's games was the production of the freshmen starters. Perine was happy with the performance of freshmen Schleeter, Klein, and Michelle Stinson.

"I thought they competed like seasoned veterans," Perine said. "It was a very pleasant surprise for their first outing."

Serbick to focus on nationals

By RYAN GIUSTI
Staff writer

Most wrestlers would be happy just to qualify for the National Championships.

Eastern senior co-captain Ray Serbick is not most wrestlers. Serbick did qualify for the Nationals by receiving a wild card bid in the NCAA West Regional, but do not expect to see him patting himself on the back. He feels he should have won his 134-pound weight class.

Last season Serbick won his weight class in the Regional by beating Scott Hassel of Northern Iowa. This year Serbick made it back to the finals of the Regional, but lost to Hassel by a technical fall.

"Losing that final match kind of pissed me off," Serbick said. "I beat that guy in the finals last year."

Serbick blamed the loss on lack of concentration.

"It was just mental. I wasn't in it," Serbick stated.

Serbick vows he won't make the same mistake again.

"I'm upset enough now where I don't think it will happen again," Serbick said.

The let down at the Regionals should not take away from the season Serbick has put together so far. The highlight of Serbick's season came on Dec. 29 and 30 in Evanston. ## Panthers face No. 5 Indiana in 1st round

By KEN RYAN

While Indiana University has grown accustomed to taking part in March Madness, the Eastern basketball team will be in unfamiliar territory when it heads to Boise, Idaho, Thursday for its game against the Hoosiers in the first round of the NCAA Tournament.

The game will start at approximately 9:30 p.m. -30 minutes after the conclusion of the Louisiana State-Brigham Young contest, which begins at 7:10 p.m. CST. The game will be televised live on NCAA-TV (Ch. 3) and WTHI-TV (Ch. 31) in Charleston.

The Hoosiers have made an appearance in the NCAA tourney six straight seasons and 11 out of the last 12. During that span, they have won two national championships, one in 1987 and the other in 1981.

On the other hand, the Panthers - the West Region's 15th seed - are making their first-ever trip to the Big Show and are looking forward to the chance of playing a nationally ranked team.

Eastern head coach Rick Samuels, in his 12th season at Eastern, said that it will be a big challenge for his Panthers.

"They're an excellent basketball team," Samuels said. "(Playing) a team that is a nationally prominent team every year (is) exciting for us and our program."

Second-seeded Indiana heads into the tournament ranked fifth in the nation by the Associated Press and No. 1 in the Jeff Sagarin computer rankings with a 23-6 overall record and a 14-4 mark in the Big Ten, good for a second-place finish behind Ohio State.

A look at the past

This year's success sparks memories of Don Eddy's teams from the late 70s

By CHRIS BOGHOSSIAN
Staff writer

What were you doing in the late 1970s?

During that era, Jimmy Carter took over for Gerald Ford as the president of the United States, disco dominated the dance floors and, of course, the state legislature was trying to find more money to funnel into education.

But another memory from the latter part of the decade hits closer to home.

It's true that Thursday's appearance in this year's NCAA Tournament will mark the first time a Panther team has earned a bid since the program moved to the Division I level in 1981.

But that's Division I.

Former head coach Don Eddy, who compiled a 208-129 record during his stay at Eastern from 1968-80, guided two of his teams to Division II semifinal appearances.

Both his 1975-76 and 1977-78 Panther squads finished third in the nation at their level of competition.

"It's a time when coaches and players will never forget," said Eddy, who resides in San Antonio, Texas. "Those were great years."

As far as Eastern basketball is concerned, Eddy is right. His 1976 squad, led by Jeff Furry, finished at 23-8. After Tennessee-Chattanooga knocked off Eastern 93-78 in the national semifinals, the Panthers bounced back to earn third place with a 78-74 win over Old Dominion.

"We really had a balanced team that year," said Eddy, who started Texas-San Antonio's Division I basketball program a year after he left Charleston. "We were a solid defensive team - I think we had only one player in double figures."

In fact, Furry was the only Panther to finish the year averaging more than 10 points per game - the senior put in 15.3 per contest. But the team held its opponents to 44 percent shooting from the floor on the year.

"We had a really good group," Eddy said, adding that the highlight of the season came when his team topped perennial Division II power Evansville in the Great Lakes Regional at Lantz Gym.

The similarities between that team and the 1978 squad are few. While the former featured defense, the latter was known for its ability to score. Charlie Thomas (19.1), Dennis Mumford

I don't know which team was better (the 1976 team or the 1978 team). I guess in my mind, the 1976 team had a definite chance to win the Division II championship.

Former Eastern head coach

(11.7), Craig DeWitt (11.6) and Derrick Scott (9.7) led the Panthers to a 21-10 slate.

Eastern again lost in the national semis, this time to - believe it or not - Wisconsin-Green Bay. The '78 Panthers won the consolation game against Florida Tech, 77-67, again for third-place honors.

"The '78 team moved toward offense," said Eddy, who retired from coaching in 1986 and runs Christian basketball camps in Texas year round. "I don't now which one was better, (the 1976 team or the 1978 team). I guess in my mind, the '76 team had a definite chance to win the Division II championship."

As for the atmosphere of the postseason tournaments, Eddy said it brings about a feeling of excitement that happens only at this time of year.

"It gives you an electric feeling," he said. "People say that this is the most exciting time of year, and I think that's true."

"In Division II, it's not of that magnitude, but as far as Eastern goes, and as far as that part of the state goes, that feeling was there."

And this year's automatic bid, Eddy said, could be a stepping stone for Eastern basketball.

"It's a major breakthrough to accomplish that," Eddy said. "Illinois is a great basketball state. The only damper in the whole thing (Eastern's appearance in the NCAA Tournament) is that it's so far away."

EASTERN VS. Indiana

At The Midwest Regional of the 1992 Division I Men's Basketball Tournament
Boise, Idaho.
About 9:30 p.m. CST Thursday. The game begins 30 minutes following the conclusion of the Louisiana State-young contest that begins at 7:10 p.m. CST.
CBS-TV will televise the game regionally: Champaign's WCIA-TV (Ch. 3) and Terre Haute's WTHI-TV (Ch.
locally. The game will also be picked up in the Chicago and St. Louis areas.
Eastern (17-13) earned an automatic bid into the tournament by winning the Mid-Continent Conference Tournament and is the 15th seed in the region. Indiana (23-6) received an at-large bid after finishing second Big Ten Conference. The Hoosiers are the West's No. 2 seed.
Eastern's Rick Samuels, 183-167 in his 12th year. Indiana's Bob Knight, 482-159 in his 21st year.
This is the first meeting between the schools.

round game against Indiana Thursday in Boise, Idaho.

Continent Tournament), and there is a strong feeling that we can put together another good game."

Junior forward Eric West, the sixth man on the Panther squad, agrees with Samuels and is looking forward to the game.

"We're pretty excited about the matchups," West said. "They don't have the seven-footer in the middle and we also feel we can go inside on them."

The Panthers have used an inside-outside game plan all season, which has started paying dividends.

Senior forward David Olson, who was eighth in the nation last season in 3-point shooting accuracy at 50 percent, has connected on 43 percent of his shots this year after a slow start.

Samuels said that Olson's long-range shooting opens up the inside game for the Panthers. Seniors Steve Rowe and Barry Johnson and sophomore center Curtis Leib will try to take care of things in the paint.

Rowe, a second-team All-Mid-Continent selection, leads Eastern in scoring at 15.5 ppg and also averages 1.9 steals a game. He was named as the Mid-Continent Conference

Postseason Tournament's Most Valuable Player after leading Eastern to a tourney title - and the NCAA bid - last week.

Rowe said he thinks most of the players are just excited about going up against one of the top teams in the country.

"I think most of the guys are really enthused about having the opportunity of going up there and playing Indiana. We'll be ready," Rowe said.

Johnson, who was named to the first-team All-Mid-Continent team, adds 14 ppg and was the league's leading rebounder at 8.5 boards per game.

In only his second season at Eastern, Leib has provided the team with an adequate post player. The 6-7 center chips in 8.9
ppg and leads the team in field-goal percentage at 56.3 percent.

The winner of the Eastern Illinois-Indiana game in the West Region of the tournament will face the winner of the LSU-BYU matchup in the second round of the tourney on Saturday.

Win or lose, Eastern Illinois finds fame

Back in 1968, artist Andy Warhol said, "In the future everyone will be world-famous for 15 minutes."

For Rick Samuels, Eastern basketball and the university, those 15 minutes are upon us, and we better enjoy them while they last.

What has transpired over the past 10 days has been nothing less than amazing. While heading out to Cleveland for the Mid-Continent Conference Tournament, I didn't give the Panthers much of a chance to win the tournament based on what transpired during the regular season. Neither did anybody else, for that matter.

I think the only ones that gave the Panthers a chance was the team itself, and they did what they set out to do - win a spot in the NCAA Tournament. Now the Panthers have their ultimate challenge in front of them in trying to knock off Indiana in the first round of the NCAA Tournament.

Don O'Brien

All of the sudden, Eastern has to try and match up its "blue-collar" guys with Indiana's "blue-chip" recruits. I have been going over in my mind the probable matchups for Thursday night's game in Boise, Idaho. Picture Curtis Leib up against Eric Anderson, Barry Johnson versus Calbert Chaney, Kavien Martin hounding Damon Bailey, Steve Rowe battling Chris Reynolds and Dave Olson guarding Alan Henderson.

On paper it would seem that the Mid-Continent Conference Tournament champion Panthers don't have a prayer in Vegas against the Big Ten runner-up Hoosiers.

Those same Vegas oddsmakers have listed the Panthers as 23-point underdogs against the Hoosiers on Thursday. They also listed Eastern as 10,000 to 1 on winning the NCAA tournament. It may just be worth putting a buck down on the Panthers.

As just about every coach in America has said this month, "Hey, it's March - tournament time - anything can happen." They are right; funnier things have happened, especially during the NCAA tournament.

But if we look at the intangibles, Eastern could very well come away with one of the biggest upsets in NCAA history.

There is no denying that the Hoosiers' five NCAA titles, three of which have come under the direction of current head coach Bobby Knight, and rich basketball tradition are going to be tough obstacles to overcome. It is the same kind of karma that surrounds the Boston Celtics in the NBA. They have also been the victims of upsets over the years, especially during even-numbered years of the tournament.

In those even-numbered years since 1980, the Hoosiers haven't made it past the regional finals of the tournament. In the past three even-numbered-year tournaments (1986, 88 and 90), the Hoosiers have been bounced in the first round of the tournament.

In 1986, it was the Mid-Continent's Cleveland State upsetting Indiana 83-79 in the opening round. The Richmond Spiders followed that up in 1988 with a 72-69 upset of the Hoosiers and the California Bears were the latest team to bounce the Hoosiers, a 65-63 win in 1990.

So is 1992 the year for the Panthers to continue that tradition? It could be.

Another look at common opponents of the two schools could also give the Panthers renewed hope. In December, Wisconsin-Green Bay upset Purdue 69-60. The Panthers, in turn, defeated Green Bay in the semifinals of the Mid-Continent last week. Purdue then defeated Eastern 61-59 in the final game of the season on Sunday. It doesn't take a math major to figure out that the Panthers' nine-point win over the Boilermakers two-point win over the Hoosiers that we get a lot of 21 points.

I'm not saying that we're going to beat Indiana by 21 points, but if you look at what happened during the regular season, we are better by that margin. Look at who got the automatic bid (Eastern) to the tournament and who didn't (Indiana).

So maybe I'm speculating a little much, but there is one thing I can say: Win or lose, Eastern basketball has benefited greatly from its 15 minutes of fame, and this Cinderella story has been a great thing to watch.

-Don O'Brien is a staff editor at The Daily Eastern News.

For this alum, Panther appearance is one to cherish

I still can't believe it. Eastern Illinois' basketball team is going to The Big Dance. The Show.

The NCAA Basketball Championship.

It's not been easy for this particularly loyal 1988 grad (and a fellow loyal alum named Dan Brannan, who graduated from this fine institution in 1982) to follow the team for a couple of years, especially living in Rocky Mount, N.C. - the heart of Tobacco Road - otherwise known as ACC country.

I mean, instead of hearing names like Leib, Olson, and Johnson, I hear names like Gugliotta, Laettner and Lynch.

And instead of coaches like Samuels and Bennett, the names I hear are guys like Krzyzewski, Smith and Robinson.

Mention Eastern Illinois to people around here, and you get blank looks, stares and things like "what the heck is that?"

But after Thursday's game against Indiana, it's almost a sure bet that people will be making the trek to the college basketball capital of Illinois.

NOT!

In all seriousness, seeing your old school finally get the national attention that's usually reserved for the big schools - even if they're saying that The General, Robert Montgomery Knight, is going to clean your clock - is something to make you very, very proud.

Only 64 schools a year say that they can go to the NAAs, and this year Eastern is one of them.

OK, so the tournament committee made Eastern a 15 seed in the West and shipped them off to Boise, Idaho, to take on the Hoosiers.

The important thing to remember is that this year, however, is a very special year - no matter what happens. All of the students and players can look back on Thursday's game and say to themselves that they were there, and schools like Illinois and Northern Illinois weren't.

Four years ago, the women's team made their first - and so far, only - appearance in the NCAA tournament, and even got to play their first game at home before a pretty partisan crowd.

Even though Colorado beat the Lady Panthers that night, I can honestly say that being a part of the NCAA atmosphere was an experience I will never forget.

Anyone who can manage to make the trip to Indianapolis for this first-round game will undoubtedly have a great time.

Now the only problem for me is to find a place around here that has a satellite dish so I can watch the game, or hope one of the CBS affiliates in the area will be so bold enough as to show the game.

No matter what, however, there's going to be a shirt or a sweater of blue and gray on me when the moment arrives and the ball is thrown up to start the game.

And I'll think of the words to Eastern's fight song all during the game.

Believe me, there won't be another feeling like this when the game is on.

- Brent Feeney is a 1988 graduate of Eastern Illinois and was a journalism major while at Eastern. He was a sports writer for The Daily Eastern News and is currently a reporter and wire writer for the Evening Telegram in Rocky Mount, N.C.

Indiana's Knight: A legend and a teacher

By R.J. GERBER
Staff writer

Just about every basketball fan in the country, if not the world, knows what Indiana University basketball coach Bob Knight has accomplished during his career.

The list is overwhelming: three NCAA national championships, winningest Big Ten coach in the history of the league with 10 titles in 21 seasons, gold medals in the Pan American Games and Olympics, more than 550 victories, 15 seasons with 20 or more wins and last May, Knight was inducted into the National Basketball Hall of Fame.

But possibly even more impressive than his track record as one of the best coaches in the history of basketball is Knight's contributions to the people he has been associated with around the game.

There are currently 13 head coaches at the collegiate level which have served under Knight either as an assistant or player during their careers - a number which is unparalleled.

Knight and his Hoosiers will make their 16th appearance in the NCAA Tournament Thursday when they meet Eastern in Boise, Idaho, in a first-round contest. Another team which is taking part in March Madness is Evansville, led by seventh-year head coach Jim Crews.

A former Knight apprentice since 1977-85, Crews was a member of Indiana's undefeated 1976 national championship team and takes his Aces, who won the Midwestern Collegiate Conference Postseason championship, to the Midwest Region as a No. 8 seed.

Evansville, which is on an 11-game winning streak and finished with a 24-5 record, will take on Texas-El Paso Friday night in Dayton, Ohio.

Crews said besides Knight's savvy for the fundamentals of the game, he teaches people much, much more.

Indiana head coach Bob Knight, one of college basketball's premier coaches, is best-known for his fiery competitiveness on the court.

"The biggest thing is he's the best person I've been around dealing with his time," said Crews, who has compiled a 125-79 record as a head coach. "He gets so much out of each day, whether it's having a good time playing golf or whatever."

"He expects the best, and he's got the best ability to get that of any person I've ever been around. It goes hand-in-hand."

As an assistant in Bloomington, Ind., Crews was in a high capacity with the Hoosiers, including during the 1981 campaign, when Knight captured his second national title.

"He lets his assistants have lots of responsibilities, and they are well diversified," added Crews. "The details of the game - not offense or defense - but teaching the fundamentals of the game (is one of his best qualities)."

But Crews isn't the only former assistant of Knight who is enjoying some success with his own program. Mike Krzyzewski, coach of defending national champion Duke, played and coached under

He cares more about the people that either play or work for him than anybody I've ever seen.

Utah State head coach Kohn Smith on Indiana's Bob Knight

Knight while at West Point. Of the six seasons Knight was on the bench for Army (1966-71), he produced five winning campaigns.

The third head coach who was under Knight's tutelage at one time, and is a participant in the NCAAs, is Miami University's (Ohio) Joby Wright. The Redskins are the No. 13 seed in the Southeast Region and will face North Carolina Thursday in Cincinnati.

Perhaps the person who best knows Knight, a six-time Big Ten Coach of the Year, is Utah State head coach Kohn Smith, who was on Knight's staff from 1981-87 before taking over the Big West's Aggies. Smith said he and Knight spend time together hunting and fishing in the off-season, and their relationship goes beyond basketball.

"I know him personally really well because we spend a lot of time together in the off-season," Smith said from his office in Logan, Utah. "I see him when he's away from the heated battle and basketball. (I see him) when he deals with kids, and he does more for people than anybody I've ever seen."

Smith shared Crews' view about how Knight uses his time to his advantage.

"He told me one time before I started working with him that you always have to be concerned about time and distance and how to take care of your time and be efficient working with your schedule."

"He trains you to do that, to be very effective with your time - to make the time that's spent, quality time. We never practiced at Indiana just to be practicing."

As for Knight's volatile demeanor and quick temper, which has caused the 51-year-old coach much controversy during his 27 years as a head coach, Smith said it's because of Knight's deep desire to win and to get the maximum potential out of everyone that he is involved with.

"Knight is the best person I've ever known," said Smith, who has compiled a 53-61 record at Utah State. "He never really gets upset with you unless you haven't done what you ought to be doing. And that really teaches you to do things well. He's just absolutely great in that regard."

"He cares more about the people that either play or work for him than anybody I've ever seen. And by caring, he makes you do things correctly and well and with class and with thought and with intelligence."

Of the many things which Smith learned from Knight and brought to the Utah State campus, he mentioned two as the most significant.

"One is preparation. The second thing is competitiveness, but within that, is how he can work harder than anybody else. He's got a brilliant mind at going through all the different angles of things that could happen or can happen or will happen."

"In a decision-making process, on like, whether to take a job, or what's the best thing for this player academically, he is able to go through all the advantages and disadvantages and options and weigh them out in his mind and make really, really good decisions."

Coach proposes selection plan: Let them all in

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Coach Mack McCarthy says he knows an easy way to decide which college basketball teams should be in the NCAA tournament: Let them all in.

McCarthy, whose Tennessee-Chattanooga basketball team was shunned by both the NCAA and the National Invitation Tournament despite its 23-7 record, realizes it's not a new solution.

But he insists it's more equitable than the current system of automatic berths and at-large bids determined by computer rankings, he says.

"Just let everybody in and play one extra weekend. That's all it would take, one extra weekend," McCarthy said Monday.

"Let everybody in, and then all you could gripe about is the seedings. And that would be a pleasant thing to gripe about. I wouldn't care if I'm the 117th seed out of 300. That means I'm going to play somebody worse than me in the first round. That'd be OK." UTC was absent Sunday night when the NCAA announced its 64-team tournament field and again when the NIT selected its 32 teams. That left the Moccasins with the best record of any team not in postseason play.

"Obviously, I'm prejudiced, but I think we can beat a lot of people in both those fields," said McCarthy, whose team posted its best record in seven years.

"And consistently, not just on a given night. I mean, I think we are a better basketball team than a lot of teams that are still playing." UTC went 12-2 in the Southern Conference to share the regular season title with East Tennessee State, then won two more games in the league tournament before losing 74-62 to ETSU in the finale.

The Southern Conference has never placed two teams in the NCAA tournament, so McCarthy was not surprised that ETSU and its automatic berth was the league's sole representative again this year.

But only four teams in this year's NIT field won as many games as the Mocs, who played in four straight NITs from 1984 to 1987.

NIT executive director Jack Powers on Monday said the NIT relied heavily on the Ratings Percentage Index, a computer system also used to help select and seed NCAA tournament teams.

In both that system and Jeff Sagarin's college basketball rating index in USA Today, UTC ranked 117th. Powers said the Southern Conference's ranking as the 26th best league also hurt the Mocs.

"They were up on the board all night. It was just something at the end. They just didn't make it," said Powers, noting that UTC also beat just one team selected for the NCAA or the NIT. And that team, East Tennessee, later defeated the Mocs twice.

But McCarthy said it was difficult for schools like UTC to schedule big-name teams without making schedule or financial concessions.

Despite going to the tournament, Eastern may receive less money

By DON O'BRIEN
Staff Editor

While fame has come quickly for the Eastern basketball team since clinching its first-ever trip to the NCAA Tournament, the fortune may have to wait a while.

The Panthers have been the kings of campus for the past week, with rallies and autograph sessions held in celebration of their accomplishment. However, any money generated because of their tournament appearance won't be in the hands of the Eastern athletic department until the 1993-94 fiscal year, said Eastern Athletic Director Mike Ryan.

The current formula used by the NCAA on disbursement of monies generated by the tournament goes by a point system. For each team a conference gets into the tournament, it receives a point. Each point translates into a separate share of money in the tournament pool.

For each round a conference advances a team, another point is earned. These points are matched out over a sliding six-year period.

The formula hasn't taken the financial impact out of the tournament, but it has diluted the impact," said Ryan, who is in his third year as Eastern athletic director. "There is no immediate financial impact now as there was in the past."

Eastern and the Mid-Continent Conference are currently working on 12 points that conference teams have gathered in the tournament from 1986-91.

Each unit is currently worth $42,857 and the conference is dividing $514,286 between nine Mid-Con schools. Thus, Eastern is currently receiving $57,142.88 despite the fact that it had never received a tournament bid until this year.

This is spare change as far as a conference like the Atlantic Coast Conference goes.

The ACC, which has racked up the most points (92) over the past six tournaments, receives more than $3 million a year from the NCAA, and the amount of money that the nine member institutions of the ACC divide up almost equals what the Mid-Continent receives on the whole. The bid may be good for the campus community and Eastern as a whole. With Wisconsin-Green Bay getting snubbed by the tournament selection committee, the Mid-Con will lose money with Eastern being the only team to get into the tournament.

"We are still reaping the benefits of Cleveland State's three points they earned in 1986," said Ryan, referring to the Vikings run in 1986, when they advanced to the Sweet 16. This will be the last year the Mid-Con will receive any money from that tournament. If Eastern should lose to Indiana in the first round of the tournament on Thursday, the Mid-Con would only get one point for this tournament while losing the three from Cleveland State at the same time.

"Since we are the only team in the NCAA tournament, and if we only go one round, the total loss to the conference will be over $85,000," said Ryan.

Not only will the conference lose money, but the athletic departments are having tough times trying to finalize their budgets since they will not know how much money they will receive from the tournament.

"It's a nightmare for us because it's March and we are trying to finalize our budgets," Ryan said. "It will be April before (the NCAA) knows how much money will be in the pool. So we really can't do much until then."

Samuels cruises coaster ride into Boise, Idaho

By JEFF ORMOND
Staff writer

Many sportswriters have related the 1991-92 Panther basketball season to a roller-coaster ride.

The Eastern roller coaster eased past the boarding platform with wins over Elmhurst College and Indiana State. Then it picked up steam, rising along the track with two more wins over Northeastern Illinois and California State-Fullerton. It capped the ascent by defeating Northeastern University for its fifth consecutive win.

Then a four-game road trip through the Midwest sent the Panthers plummeting downward with four consecutive losses. The trip marked the beginning of a season filled with ups and downs.

While the Panthers threatened to knock the cars off the track, head coach Rick Samuels kept the team on the right path, guiding Eastern to a Mid-Continent Conference Tournament Championship and the school's first-ever berth in the NCAA Tournament.

Samuels, in his 12th season at Eastern, readily agrees with the roller-coaster label.

"I felt we played inconsistently," said Samuels. "I didn't think we played as well as we would have liked to, particularly in late January and early February. That's the time when you want to peak."

The stretch of the season Samuels referred to was one in which the Panthers lost six of seven games, including three straight home contests.

Last summer, however, Samuels almost avoided that bad stretch altogether by nearly accepting the head coaching job at Division II power Central Missouri. But his strong ties to his players kept him in Charleston.

"One of the factors in my staying was that I thought we had a group of young men that were special," said Samuels, who has compiled a record of 183-167 at Eastern. "I thought there were some players in our program, particularly some seniors, who really cared about me."

One of the seniors Samuels is fond of is Rod McKinnis, a former starter at power forward. Samuels had some difficulty trying to adjust his lineup after McKinnis injured his knee in practice after the California State-Fullerton game and was sidelined for the rest of the season.

Samuels experimented first with senior David Olson in McKinnis' spot. Then he decided to start freshman Andre Rodriguez and bring Olson off the bench. He eventually settled on Olson as the starter, capitalizing on Olson's three-point shooting.

"We just never could get to the flow we wanted, the same feel that we had with Rod McKinnis," said Samuels. "We never did recover that; we had to re-tune a little bit. We decided to let this group of players develop their own team unity."

"We missed Rod on the floor, but as evidenced by what has gone on, he was still a factor in our team's determination."

When asked when he thought the team played at its best during the regular season, Samuels couldn't name a certain point. Instead, he cited wins against Wright State, Northern Illinois and Western Illinois as key victories.

"We were sporadic," he said. "Late in the season, there was still that inability to play consistently well for an entire 40 minutes. It's the old saying, 'Get hot at the right time,' and we did that. We got hot at exactly the right time; we were able to maintain that for three games in the (Mid-Continent) tournament."

When Samuels steps onto the court Thursday in Boise, Idaho, for his team's first-round game against Indiana in the NCAA Tournament, he may hear some cheers from nearby fans from Wyoming. Samuels is originally from Laramie, Wyo., where he cultivated his interest in basketball.

After graduating from Chadron State, located in Nebraska, he was an assistant for one year at Eastern Washington. Next, he joined the Iowa State staff in 1976 and left to accept the Eastern job in 1980. In 1985, he and the Panthers won the conference tournament. Unlike this year's team, though, the 1985 team didn't receive an automatic bid to the NAAs.

What keeps Samuels going during the regular season and especially now, during the stress of tournament time, is his family.

"I have great support from my family. My daughters (Tiffany, Risa and Kassie) get excited about what's happening to us (the team), and they always want to know what's going on."

"My wife (Jan) has been around (basketball) long enough that she has a feel for the ups and downs and is supportive."

Samuels also appreciates the cooperation his coaching staff has given the program.

"We get along well," he said. "There isn't competition within our staff like there is with a lot of staffs - that's refreshing." He also works out and runs with some of his assistant coaches to relieve stress.

Assistant coach George Morgan thinks Samuels was able to lead Eastern to the tournament by emphasizing responsibility to his seniors.

"He hasn't done a lot differently, but he's given them (the players) goals to obtain," says Morgan. "And he's taught them to be held accountable for their actions."

Center Curtis Leib agrees that Samuels didn't change his coaching style for the postseason.

"It's been the same," said the sophomore post player. "He did a pretty good job of motivating us for the conference tournament, and we really spent a lot of time preparing for it."

Now that the tournament's selection process is complete, Samuels must face Indiana's

CARL WALK/Senior photographer

Twelfth-year head coach Rick Samuels speaks to about 1,000 people upon his team's return to Lantz Gym after winning the Mid-Continent Conference Postseason Tournament.

Bobby Knight, a legendary coach who has won three national championships and is one of the best-prepared coaches for any game, especially an NCAA contest. Does Knight and his record intimidate Samuels?

"No, he doesn't intimidate me," he said without hesitation. "I respect him for what he is as a coach and a teacher. I don't want to model him in any way, other than being as astute to the game as I perceive him to be."

In contrast to the unpredictable Knight, Samuels sees himself as consistent with his players.

"I'm not a guy that changes personalities a great deal," he said. "They know what to expect. Frankly, I'm fairly low-key. I think I'm fairly understanding."

"I'm a practice coach," continued. "That's my job. I get the team ready; I'm not Knute Rockne. I don't do great pre-game talks."

Samuels said his goal is to prepare his players so he can give them the opportunity to succeed in the tournament.

"Well, you play the game to win," he says. "We've accomplished something special, but we don't want it to end any sooner than absolutely has to."

When asked if he has ever "made it," since he has been invited to coach in the NCAA Tournament, Samuels shook his head. "I don't think so," he said. "I think I'll be hungrier to win."

Murray State's Edgar hopes to upset Hogs

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Sure, Scott Edgar learned the details of coaching college basketball during his 11 years as an assistant to Nolan Richardson. He learned how to win, too.

But there was more. Edgar developed a sense of responsibility and respect for those around him, things he was determined to carry over when he left Arkansas last year to become head coach at Murray State.

Now the program that taught him, he helped build, will be the one he tries to defeat when his Racers (17-12) and Arkansas (25-7) meet Thursday in the first round of the NCAA Midwest Regional at the Bradley Center.

Edgar has mixed feelings about playing Arkansas because I build up a dislike for an opponent, and there's no dislike in Arkansas," Edgar said. "We were basically family and it got to the point that, except for my own father, I don't respect any man more than Nolan Richardson.

"He brought me into Division 1. He trained me, he had patience with me. He took me when I was 24. As time went on he gave me more freedom here and there. Last year he made me the assistant head coach. I probably had a better relationship with him than any assistant in the country. I've tried to treat my assistants the same way."

Edgar spent five years with Richardson at Tulsa and then six more at Arkansas, helping recruit the current Razorback senior class that has already made one trip to the Final Four.

"All the coaches here are involved in recruiting, but Scott played a big part in my coming here," said Arkansas senior guard Lee Mayberry. "He's a great recruiter and a good coach." For weeks, Richardson and Edgar had projected a first-round matchup in the tournament but when it was finally announced Sunday, Edgar said it was still a bit shocking.

1992 NCAA Tournament

The Razorbacks, regular-season champs of the Southeastern Conference, got in as an at-large team after losing in the semifinals of the SEC tournament while Murray State won 11 of its final 12 games to capture the Ohio Valley Conference.

"I don't know if the tournament committee intentionally makes matchups like that, but it's strange that out of all the teams in the country we'd be matched up with Murray State," Richardson said earlier.

"It's tough to play against a guy I've worked with for 12 years and who helped recruit this team," Edgar said his game plan is to keep Mayberry, who averaged 15.5 points, and Todd Day, who averaged 23.9, shooting from the outside and hope "they have an average or semi-average day." He'll also need a big game from his 6-foot-8 center Popeye Jones, who averaged 21 points and 14 rebounds per game.

Edgar has attempted to implement some of the basketball he learned from Richardson.

"We try," he said. "But we look at them as going about 90 mph while we are still within the speed limit at about 55."

In the other first-round games, Memphis State (20-10) meets Pepperdine (24-6); Georgia Tech (21-11) faces Houston (25-5); and Southern California (23-5) and All-America guard Harold Miner take on Northeast Louisiana (19-9).

Pepperdine, the West Coast Conference and tournament champions, brings a 12-game winning streak against Memphis State, which finished tied for third in the Great Midwest Conference before losing in the tournament finals to Cincinnati.

"When you're Pepperdine, you're not going to get to play a Campbell or Robert Morris," Waves coach Tom Asbury said. "We knew we were going to play a tough team. We've played some tough folks on the road. We've been in Pauley Pavilion and Lawrence, Kansas. I don't know how much that will help, but I hope it helps us from being intimidated." Pepperdine is led by 6-6 guard Doug Christie, who averaged 19.4 points, and 6-8 forward Geoff Lear with 17 points a game.

Memphis State's first trip to the Bradley Center two weeks ago is one the Tigers would just as soon forget. A mediocre Marquette team beat them 82-67.

"We played well. I had one of my best games of the year. But Marquette was just on fire that day," said Memphis State star Anfernee Hardaway, who averaged 17 points. "Hopefully, Pepperdine won't be."

Georgia Tech is making its eighth straight NCAA tournament appearance, facing a Houston team that won the Southwest Conference tournament.

The Yellow Jackets made the Final Four in 1990 but junior forward Malcom Mackey is the only player on the current team who played much that season. Tech is led by guard Jon Barry, who averages 16.7, Mackey and center Matt Geiger.

"We don't have the manpower we had in 1990. But we're an interesting team," Tech coach Bobby Cremins said. "We're a dangerous team. If Jon Barry gets hot, a lot of things can happen."

Houston, led by swingman Sam Mack, forward Craig Upchurch and center Charles "Bo" Outlaw, has won nine in a row after beating Texas in the Southwest Conference tournament finals.

Southern Cal's Miner is known as much for his resemblance to Michael Jordan and his superstitious on-court antics as he is for his remarkable talent.

A 6-5 junior, Miner averaged 26.7 points and helped the Trojans beat UCLA twice and also beat Ohio State and Arizona.

"I think we have the capability of getting to the Final Four," USC coach George Raveling said. "I think we have the desire to get to the Final Four. Obviously it's going to take a lot of work."

Northeast Louisiana has been a 15th seed in the NCAA tournament for three years running. The Indians, who won the Southland Conference tournament, were beaten in the first round last year by eventual NCAA champion Duke.

"We had hoped for a 13th or 14th seed because I think there are seven or eight teams in the field that we're better than," Northeast coach Mike Vining said. "But we've been in this thing enough to know what to expect and I felt like we would be a 15th."
